Protect Yourself From

Financial Exploitation

TIPS TO REDUCE YOUR RISK

What Is Financial Exploitation?

Financial exploitation is the illegal or improper use of another individual's resources for personal profit or gain. This type of exploitation encompasses a broad range of conduct, from deception to intimidation.

ASK FOR HELP

Financial matters can be confusing. If you have questions or need assistance, ask for help from your bank, a trusted family member, clergy member, social worker or other professional.

BE BUSINESS WISE

Don't Give Away Property

Before you enter into an agreement for lifelong care, discuss the arrangement with a trusted friend or advisor. Document the agreement and specify the compensation, if there is any, paid to the caregiver. If there is someone helping you with your personal finances, get a trusted third party to review your bank statement.

Be Cautious of Joint Accounts

Both parties are equal owners of the account and both have equal access to the funds in the account.

Document Financial Arrangements

By putting financial arrangements in writing, you not only protect yourself but you also reduce the likelihood of legal proceedings. Put all financial instructions in writing and be specific. Keep complete financial records of all transactions. Put all financial documents in a safe place.

Understand What You Are Signing

Before you assign a power of attorney, be sure you understand the scope of the agreement and the authority you are giving to your agent. Know the person to whom you are giving this authority. Also, specify the compensation, if any, to be paid to your agent.

STAY CONNECTED

Stay Socially Active

Social isolation increases your risk of becoming a victim of abuse. Become familiar with the many programs in your community designed to bring people together and to help elderly people and their families.

Get to Know Your Banker, Attorney and Financial Consultant

Establish relationships with the professionals who handle your money. They can help detect changes in your financial activity that may signal a problem.
